GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY.

To the Editor of the Heraid.

5is,—That the progress of the railway works from Blacktewn to Penrith has been so decidedly slote, is a natter of very general regret. A public moening having been held in Penrith, about a month since, a series of resolutions were passed, expressive of the feelings of the inhabitants on the subject. A petition to his Excellency the Governor and the Executive Council, praying for the speedy conselection of the line is being curried about the district for signatures, and would of course be signed by every man, woman, and child if it were believed the long array of some could, by any talismanic power, urge on the official machinery of Phillip-street to a higher rate of speed than it is accustomed to travel.

However, this tack is hopeless. We are already informed that the contractors have until the 1st May next to complete the line—it is not at all probable that it will be opened a day sooner—rather may we expect it will be a most her reliable authority, that it is possible to complete about two and a half miles of the said line—that is to say, from linctiown to Crawford's—in six weeks or so from this date, I sm induced to give the statement every publicity, and avail myself of your valuable columns for the purpose.

How great would be the boon could the Government be induced to gree this persion of the line in two months, and which might be effected quite easily! What an intolerable misance it has been found by rasay traversing through the bush by every imaginable by-way to Blacktown!
How few now, living even in the neighbourhood of Eastern Creek, eare to avail themselves of the rail from that date/place.

Let the line be finished the two and a-half miles and it.

Creek, eare to avail themselves of the rail from that date place.

Let the line be finished the two and a-half miles and it will then be accessible by an excellent road to the hundreds whe now travel daily by coach and otherwise, between Paramatta and Penrilli. Goods to the amount of 100 tons per week would find their way to a station at Crawford's, and especially if the very high rates now charged for earning between Paramatta and Blacktown were reduced. Were this suggestion acted upon by our railway authorities, it is quite certain that not only would a very great been be conferred on the inhabitants of the Western districts generally, but it is equally sure that many thousands of pounds would flow from this source into the coffers of ear Treasury, ere the sound of the railway whistle is heard on the banks of the Nepean.

SENEX.

Sin.—As the extracts from the New Zealand papers in the Mertald of this morning, lead to the conclusion that war is again imminent in that unhappy country, allow me to suggest, through the medium of your columns, the use of the entras by a portion, at least, of our troops there.

Shortly after the last war with France, my father took me over the Tower of London, and I there sur thousands of entrasees that had been gathored after the battle of Water-loo, or, more exactly speaking, on the field of Quatre Brus, where the French cuirnssiers were annihilated by our Stotch infantry. Every cuirness bore triumphant testimony to the skill, as marksmen, of our troops; but although every cuirns was dented by the bullet, not more than one in a hundred was perforated; a Stotch-sergeant after one or two charges having suggested the proper method of dealing with mounted cuirassiers, namely, to drop the horses—a suggestion that was instantly adopted, to the destruction of the assentiants.

Our troops very reasonably complain that in Now Zeanach they have to centend with a wily and invisible foe, sheltered in an almost impenetrable, and quite an incombustive control of the assentiants.

land they have to contend with a wily and invisible fee, shel-tered in an almost impenetrable, and quite an incombusti-ble scrub, whilst they themselves are as conspicuous as geralet can make them.

Convert five hundred of our soldiers into curaissiers, cap them with bullot-proof helmets, and arm them lightly, say with revolvers, they will then invade the lair of the enemy with good effect; and if they fail to achieve the happiest results on the war itself, say (what, however, is only the truth) that I am

NO SOLDIER.

July 22.
P.S.—Our office is so extremely aberthended, that I find I cannot possibly go down to New Zealand and take charge of the war, otherwise I would not have troubled you with the foregoing.

NEW ZEALAND-THE ROAD VERSUS THE RIPLE.

(From the Wellington Independent, July 9.)

New Zealand it must be allowed is a difficult country to govern. Our peculiar relations to the native population, and their peculiar character, render it the easiest thing in the world to commence a quarrel with them, or rather the most difficult thing to avoid being drawn into one; the nature of the country is such, that few anticipate great results when at last hostilithem, or rather the most difficult thing to avoid being drawn into one; the nature of the country is such, that few anticipate great results when at last hostilities become inevitable, and many good judges believe that complete military success is not to be looked for; and, finally, as we see at the present time, a most anomalous state of things may be the result of hostilities. We have neither prace nor war: the country is full of soldiers, and the natives have returned to their peaceful avocations for the winter months, are possibly sorry for what they have done, but certainly do not act as if they were, and at all events show very few signs of feat. Subdued they are not.

thes from doing what must aconer or later be done, but ratker study how best to surmount them effectually.

The pick and shovel must do the work of the rifis. The country must be sapped with a high road, and if they wish to fight, the enemy must come out from their strongholds and fight round the working parties. When they are beaten back there will be no necessity for following them up; the road will gradually penetrate the country, and where there is a road, British soldiers, properly commanded, ought to be able to hold their own. Law and the rights of property would soon follow, the steady advance of British arms would soon become the highway of civilisation.

Here we might stop, but the view presented to our readers would be incomplete without the following from the New Zealander:—"The one great difficulty of the Walkato question is a difficulty which, sithough most certainly visible and appreciable, is so subtle and so intangible as almost to defy any grappling with it. It will clude the keen edge of the sword as it does the sharp wit of diplomacy, Major-General Cameron, who brings us a name belonging to an illustrious band of heroes, would no more be able to get hold of it than the ablest of Governors, or the most experienced of Secretaries in the Native Office, or the most self-sufficient of Maori dectors in the House, to say nothing of the most splenetic of archdeacons in the Church. It lies sin.ply here: you have not any one to deal with. When we make a demand on a people with a recognised government, we know from whom we are to get an answer. Even at the Waitern we were dealing specifically with one tribe. Yet what happened there? The Ngatiawa insurrection broke to pieces, and we were fain to receive the separate aubmission of Hapurona and Patukakariki, letting William King go off with his tail between his legs. At Waikato this difficulty is indefinitely multiplied. Mr. Fenton's list of 150 tribes and hapus, in the Appendix to the Waikato Committee's report, is of itself sufficient to negative the expectation of being able to get a categorical answer there from anyone to whom we may apply at first. Suppose negotiation is tried: what chief or chiefs of Waiksto can at the present moment bind the tribes, or give us any real security for their aubmission to the Queen? We known that Tamati Ngapora, that Wiremu Nern, with many others of nearly equal rank, have always been on the Queen's side; but their loyalty is no guarantee against the designs of the land leaguers, nor the slightest hostage for the continuance of peace. We know that twen Thompson professes loyalty and a desire for law, and that King Mututera himself is to his people no great sovereign; yet it would be nonsense to call these men good subjects. Or suppose the matter is handed over to the General; whom is he to attack? No one in his sonces supposes that a movement of the troops upon Waikato can be made without occupying the country of friends as well as foce, and without therefore making it quite uncertain whether the blow would first fall on the heads of rebels. We may find ourselves commencing the establishment of the Queen's supremacy, by destroying those who have all along

(Extract from a Letter from a Settler at Figi.)

JULY 107H.—We are progressing slowly, but surely. Since my last letter to you, a number of new settlers have linked themselves to Figi. The Semosomo Company, consisting of gentlemen well known in your city, have invested to some considerable extent in land on Vanus Levu. Coconnut plantations on a large scale are the principal objects in which this company is interested.

Some gentlemen connected with the squatting interest in Victoria have also become landed proprietors here on the north coast of Viti Levu, and return to Melbourne by an early opportunity to make the necessary arrangements for bringing sheep, cattle, and horses on to their newly purchased runs.

These gentlemen speak in the highest terms of the climate and the grazing capabilities of the land, and are exceedingly sanguine as to the success they anticipate.

The Friends, which vessel I advised you in my last are exceedingly sanguine as to the success and accipate.

The Friends, which vessel I advised you in my last had been chartered to proceed to Norfolk Island for sheep and cattle, has returned, and has landed her cargo of stock on Wakaia.

In the Rewa River district the settlers are occupied in planting cotton and sugar cane, each one according to his fancy,—some believing that the cane cultivation will result more profitably than cotton, others that the latter will pay them better than sugar or syrup.

tion will result more profitably than cotton, others that the latter will pay them better than sugar or syrup.

At Deuba, on the south coast of Viti Levu, the settlers are employed entirely in cotton and cane planting. Their first year's crop will, as a matter of course, be small in quantity, for much time has been spent in getting homesteads comfortably arranged. But next year you may expect shipments of wool, cotton, and sugar-cane syrup. The latter is an article which has attracted considerable attention among the settlers; they believe that this article, which is merely the inspissated juice of the sugar-cane, will find a ready market with your refining companies at a remunerative price. Samples have been forwarded to the colonies, and if a favourable report be received, you may expect in a year or two considerable shipments. No one here has the capital to start into sugar; but the cone syrup can be produced with so simple and uncostly a plant that we are all in great hopes of its finding a demand with you.

Coffee plantations have also been started. The you.

Coffee plantations have also been started. The "Friends" brought a considerable number of plants from Norfolk Island, and we are in expectation of receiving several thousands from Togs.

The land sales policy which has been adopted here continues to work well, and every day's experience only confirms me the more in its perfect adaptability to our requirements.

they must ultimately separate. And why not do so now?

Is the North too proud and too passionate to listen to the voice of a friend and kinsman, who would urge both parties to lay down their weapons, wind up their partnership, and agree upon the terms of a separation? Mr. Seward has haughtily rejected the idea of any intermediation or arbitration, especially if it come from England or the monarchies of Europe; but after a bloody campaign of three months, in which both aides will have suffered an amount of injury that it will take more than thirty years to repair, will not the reasons for a separation be more cogent than ever?

As regards the alleged failure of free institutions in America, we assert that they have not failed, because they have not yet been tried. The United States never were free. Their constitution was a false pretence; their declaration of the inalienable rights of man was a mockery; and no European deapot has a right to allege, in consequence of the recent outbreak in America, that the broadest popular freedom is incompatible with order, prosperity, peace, and progress.

The Northern and Western States, if they freedom is incompatible with order, prespecity, peace, and progress.

The Northern and Western States, if they would but acquiesce, without further bloodshed, in the loss of a barren dominion over an unwilling and erring brother, might, for the first time in the world's history, be justified in boasting that there was one great and really free Republic, where a man is a man, whatever be the colour of his skin; and where every man had a vote in the making of the laws and of the Government to which he pledged his obedience. We believe that such a Republic will, soomer or later, emerge out of the present strife, and that the South will be left to itself and to its slavery. The North, instead of dreading such a result, ought to welcome it as the happiest possible solution of an enormous and daily-increasing difficulty and misery.

THE HUNGARIAN QUESTION.

[Prior La Press.]

The addresses voted by the two Chambers of the Austrian Parliament have singularly agravated the adready frestening situation of liungary. In his opening speech protection of the prior of the declaration was proved the surface of the declaration was clear; the cabinate of Vienna wished to make use of the united representation as a legal instrument for the coercion of dissentients, and thus, by means of the deputies, to render the provinces dependent on, and responsible to, the government. The plan has succeeded, but it remains to be seen whether the government will have any long enjoyment of its success. Hungary at present finds herself between these two alternatives; either also must consequence, and the superior of the Empire, or cless sho must romain firm in her resistance, although the other nationalities may repreach her for compromising the new liberal institutions by so doing. This autagonism may have terrible consequences, and it is important to obtain a precise idea of their nature.

Should the Hungarians consent to send their deputies to Vienna, Austria would at one blow obtain what she has consequences, and it is important to obtain a precise idea of the manipamation, of Hungary with the rest of the empire. That is the real question, which is misrepresented on the amalgamation, of Hungary with the rest of the empire. That is the real question, which is misrepresented on the one side, uncenticually, by these who do not well understand it, and on the other, willfully, by those when wish to obscure it. By now withdrawing from the struggle the Hungarians would betray the cause which has been also declared to the same and the structure of the same and the superior of the same and the superior of the same and the same anature of the same and the same and the same and the same and the OLD FASHIONED HELP.—Mr. John Wash, holding a small farm in the parish of Southminister, was unable this year to go forth to his wented toil. In consequence of the pressing necessities of a large family of young children, and the paucity of the proceeds from the last year's harvest, he could not hire for the necessary work of the season. A suggestion was made that a party of volunteers should hoe a field of corn of twelve acres, which had been overrun with weeds; and on Thursday and Friday they mustered fifty in number, and by working two hours each evening, after the ordinary period of labour, they reduced the weeds and saved the plant of corn.—Essex Telsgraph.

A GRATEFUL OFFERING.—The seamen visiting the port of Blyth have sent an additional donation of £6, contributed in small sums, varying from threepence upwards, to the National Lifeboat and the comfort of knowing where to run for a lifeboat when on a lee shore, and no port of refuge near? When vessels are overtaken by an off-shore gale of wind on our northeast coast, no shelter is often afforded them until they reach Yarmouth Roads, where, alas, too frequently, the bodies of their unhappy crews are found floating on the outlying sandbanks; but where, let it be said to the honour of our lifeboat service, the lifeboats of this important institution are often engaged in performing the holest deeds to suffering humanity.

A BLACK TENNYSON.—A certain Mr. Close, who

A BLACK TENNYSON.—A certain Mr. Close, who seems to rejoice in local additions, as he calls himself at once the "Kirby Stephen Poet and Poet Laureate to the King of Bonny, in Western Africa," has extracted £50 a year out of the Civil Pension Fund. To work out such a sum is indeed an achievement, and if the art that did it was acquired in the castle of the King of Bonny, it may be said to be the last and greatest triumph of Bonnycastle's arithmetic. When Mr. W. Stirling asked a question on this pension, Bermal Usborne suggested that, as his Bonny Majesty, he ought certainly to have got the sack from Lord Palmerston.—Punch.

Dreadful. American Story.—During the drilling of an oil mill at Tidione, Pennsylvania, recently, a sudden rush of oil, at the rate of seventy barrels an hour, took place, the stream secending forty-one feet above the surface of the ground. Above this mass of oil the gas or benzine rose in a cloud, for fifty or sixty feet. All the fires in the neighbourhood were immodistely extinguished, excepting one 400 yards distant. The fire from this ignited the floating gas, and in a moment the whole sir was in roaring flames. As soon as the gas took fire, the dead of the jet of oil was in a furious blaze, and falling like water from a fountain over a space 100 feet in diameter, each drop of oil-came down a blazing globe of boiling oil. Instantly the ground was in a flame, constantly increased and augmented by the boiling oil. At once, a scine of indescribable horror took place. Scores were thrown fiat, and for a distance of twenty feet, and numbers horribly burnt, rushing blazing from the hell of misfortune, shricking and screaming in their anguish. Just within the circle of the flames could be seen four bodies boiling in the seething oil; and one man who had been digging at a ditch to convey away the oil to a lower part of the ground was killed as he dug, and could be seen, as he fell over the handle of the spade, roasting in the fierce element. Mr. H. R. Rouse, a gentleman largely interested in wells in this locality, and whose income from them amounted to 1000 dellars a day, was standing near the pit, and was blown twenty feet by the explosion. He got up and ram about ton or fifteen feet further, and was dragged out by two men, and conveyed to fa shanty some distance from the well. When he arrived not a vestige of clothing was left upon him but his stockings and boots. Lik hair was burnt off, as well as his finger nails, his ears, and his cyclide, while the balls of his eyes were crisped up to nothingness. In this country, 200 dollars to each of the two men whorescue has removed the provide of the firm was a first plan 78.0 71.0 71.0 66.3 77.0 59.1 59.1 59.1 59.1 Observations at Maltland di.continued; instruments removed to Telegraph statism at Newcastl.; in o return for May.

The pressure of vapour and humidity are calculated, for the country stations, from the me... so the dry and wet bulb results, consequently they are not quit: so exact as those for Sydney.

The evaporation at Sydne: determined by actual measurement; the water being contained in a glass cylinder placed on the ground, on the south side of the Observatory.

The portion of sky obscur- d is estimated in tenths, according to the observer's judgment. The force of the wind is represented by numbers from 0 to 6, and the direction and magnitude of the resultant determined on the principle of the resolution of mechanical forces. Where the number of observations has been resultant determined on the principle of the resolution dieses than 50, the resultant has been smultiplied by 93, and divided by the number made.

W. SCOTT, Astronomer. EXTRAGRDINARY VAR ATIONS OF TEMPERATURE.—
The highest temperature of the air at Clifton on May 11 was only 41 degrees, and on May 16 it was as high as 75 3 degrees. Meteo-clogical records have hardly on any previous occasion shown so remarkable a

Scottish Hungur.—In Dean Ramsay's new volume on "Scottish Life and Character" are some good stories. Foremest among them is the answer of old Mrs. Robinson (widow of the eminent professor of natural philosophy) to a gentleman whom she had invited to dinner, and who had accepted with the observation, "If I am spared." "Weel, weel, if ye're dead I'll no expect you." Still better is that of an old maiden lady at Montrose, who declined to subscribe towards the organisation of a volunteer corps in that town in the following terms: "Indeed, I'll do nes sic thing; I never could raise a man for mysel,' and I'm no gaen to raise men for King George." And it is followed immediately by another, which, in its way, is quite immitable: "I recollect my father giving a conversation between a Perthabite laird and one of his tenants. The hird's eldest son was rather a simpleton. Laird says: "I am going to sand the young laird abroad. "What for?' asks replies: But, gudeness-sake, laird, will no the world see him?"

On examination it was found that the damage sustained was, tant some of the paint had been straped from the vessel's forefoot and a few rivets satured, together with other rivets under the forn hatch and also at her stern. It has been deemed prudent to cut out the started rivets and replace them with new ones (in all abs. 11 20) and this with a fresh coat of paint will constitute all the re-airs necessary.—Hobert Town Mercruy, July 1876.

The Sydney Morning Merald.

TUESDAY, JULY 23, 1861.

WHILE too many consider that they secure popularity by encouraging riots and unlawful assemblages, we shall perhaps not overstep our line of duty in the eyes of the peaceable demoine of duty in the eyes of the peaceable demo-mocracy by referring to the state of the law with respect to such proceedings. If it be true that the natives of this colony are the authors of these outrages, of course, all appeal to law would be absurd, and England has wretchedly failed in the reproduction of herself in the colonies she has founded. We have been accustomed to nas founded. We have been accustomed to attribute the disorders by which we have been occasionally disgraced to the trading politicians—to the discharged felons of the empire, but we are now informed by "high authority." that it is the natives of Australia who would disarm their Government and disgrace their country by conduct only hitherto-charged upon this year, and resolution to be the control of the cont charged upon thieves and revolutionists. For our own part we disdain the imputation. The natives of this colony, like others, will differ with respect to the policy of particular measures, but they will not lend themselves to the infamy of public disorder, or attempt to overpower the action of Government which is professedly based on universal suffrage, and which is but too prone to yield to the impulse of numbers. The hope of the rioters is no doubt in the sympathy of men who are supposed to constitute juries and control the current of criminal justice. They may, however, be mistaken. There are lengths to which that sympathy will not go. It is possible that an honest jury may occupy the box—that fearless witnesses may proclaim the truth—that the Government may be in the hands of mer who have some notion of its functions and of its honour. We therefore advise no man to calculate upon an acquittal if his crime is clear. The chances are no doubt many in his favour, but he may be mistaken.

is described by the Criminal Law Commissioners -quoting from a volume written by Mr. Jus-tice Wise in 1848, and published at that tice Wise in 1848, and published at that time in England:—

"If three or more persons shall assemble, or being together shall continue together, for the common purpose of executing some unlawful and violent act, or of executing any act whatsoever, in such manner, or under such circumstances of violence, threats, tumult, numbers, display of arms, or otherwise, as are calculated to create terror and alarm amongst the Queen's subjects, and shall in either case wholly or in part execute such purpose, every such person shall be deemed to be guilty of a riot."

As defined by Mr. Weyner a vict is where

As defined by Mr. WISE, a riot is where three or more persons are assembled together without the authority of the law, and engaged in the actual execution of a joint design of a private nature, with violence and to the terro of the people.

From this it will be seen that three persons may be guilty of riot—that the general evidence of the joint purpose is in the display of force such force as would cause terror to the people and prevent their offering assistance against aggression. Even the very threat of violence will give the character of a riot to an assembly if it contain in itself the other elements of alarm Even an object legitimate in itself, does not strip a riot of its illegal character, if that object be supported by violent means.

A riot is distinguished from high treason by being of a private or local nature—such as the destroying of an enclosure. If the object to be attained be not local or private, but contemplate a redress of national grievances, real or imagin ary, this would constitute treason, and is an attack upon the Royal authority.

It must be borne in mind, too, that all who are present at the time when a breach of the takes place, having a common design in view, are equally guilty, although they do not all share in the performance of the very act which is the subject of the indictment. They by their countenance, encouragement, and protection of persons who encouragement, and protection of persons who actually perpetrated the crime are equally guilty in the eye of the law. Thus, a man who was shouting, and by his shouts inciting persons to pull down a house, was held to be guilty, and accordingly sentenced to death.

It is usual, before any attempt is made to disperse the mob, to read the Riot Act. A riot must actually exist. And here we would warn our readers who are disposed to riots, of the serious penalties to which they are liable by taking part in disturbances under these circum stances. Any man who attempts to prevent the reading of the Riot Act is liable to the penalty of death. The proclamation is very short—it is as follows :-

"Our Sovereign Lord [Lady] the King [Queen] chargeth and commandeth all persons, being assembled, immediately to disperse themselves, and peaceably to depart to their habitations, or to their lawfall business, upon the pains contained in the Act made in the first year of King George, for preventing tumults and riotous assemblies. God save the King [Queen]."

Any one remaining in defiance of this law one hour after it has been read is liable to suffer death. If any persons be injured, or killed, who shall remain after this time, it is sufficient answer that they were in opposition to the

It is very important that peaceable subjects should understand the nature of their responsishould understand the nature of their responsi-bilities in connection with these riots. It is the duty of all persons, whether they be in office or not, to put a stop to riot and to appre-hend offenders. They should endeavour to act under the direction of a magistrate, but if not, they may act upon their own responsibility in suppressing a riotous and tumultuous assembly, and if this be the bona fide purpose of their interference, they will be supported and justified by common law. Those who resist persons engaged in lawfully sup-pressing a riot will, if death ensue, be liable to the punishment of murder. No one indeed would be safe in arresting, unless while an actual witness of the offence, but any man may arrest a felon or misdemeanant taken in the act. A very important statement was made by Mr. Justice Important statement was made by Mr. Justice Tindalle, in a charge in a case of riot. He asserted that the soldier is still a citizen, lying under the same obligation, and invested with the same authority, to preserve the peace of the Queen as any other subject; that if the one is bound to attend the call of the civil magistrate, so also is the soldier; if the one may interfere so also is the soldier; if the one may interfere for that purpose when the occasion demands it, without the requisition of the magistrate, so may the other too, and that if the one may employ arms for that purpose, where arms are necessary, the soldier may do the same. Whatever caution and prudence may be necessary to prevent the military interfering with reclusive the effect of the charge of Mr. Justice Tindal is that they, like others, are bound to support the Government—to suppress tumult when they are witnesses of it—to do so with arms if necessary—and that they are justified in interfering without the authority of the civil power. It is desirable, however, that they should usually act under the civil authority; although, unfortunately, when this is vested in although, unfortunately, when this is vested in although, unfortunately, when this is vested in the extent of one quarter, the profit must be feeble hands, the most serious mischief is ofter done, and life sacrificed to an enormous extent which might have been saved by timely vigour and firmness. There is no system so cruel as that which suffers men who have a purpose deliberately to violate the law to acquire strength by impunity. Among the examples, which are known to every reader, we may refer to the case of the Gordon riots, where a mob of thieves and prostitutes, supported by the presence, but without the aid of thousands of idle persons, filled London with terror for several days, committing all costs of dependations and heavy and mitting all sorts of depredations and havoc, and perished by hundreds the victims of their own perished by hundreds the victims of their own drunkenness and folly. All this arose from the feebleness of the magistracy, and the Mavor of London was tried and convicted of gross misconduct in the execution of his office. Even the Ministers themselves were far below their duty, and King George The Third, notwithstanding his strong prejudice against Catholic emancipation, declared that unless the military were called out by subordinate authority he would out by subordinate authority he would direct them in person—a resolution worthy of a king.

It is the duty of the sound part of the community to stand up firmly and resolutely for the maintenance of law. It is the only defence we have against dangers which are patent to every one, but which it would serve no good purpos to delineate. In every society there are men who are its secret enemics. In all communities who are its secret enemies. In all communities there are those who get their living by stimulating the bad passions and aggravating the discontent of the ignorant and dissolute. Whenever violence is done they are always ready to extenuate it. They always give their weight to the cause of disorder. By denying facts—by extenuating their character, by intimidating those who are respective for the while dating those who are responsible for the public peace, and generally exciting a spirit of mischief, they push themselves into bad eminence. The people of this country are, however, for the most part interested in the preservation of Government and in the suppression of crime and violence in every form. It is certain that no man who has anything to lose, unless as a mere matter of trade, will side with the disorder, and least of all will the natives of the colony, whose reputation is insulted by the charge of complicity with these nefarious transactions. It will be found, whenever occasion shall require it, that the young men of New South Wales will make short work with the disturbers of the peace, whether they are foreign revolutionists, pseudo-reformers, or liberated

IT will be a famous thing for Mr. WEEKES if the present general election in Victoria should result in the return of a majority pledged to the support of a protective policy. A thumping duty levied in Victoria on all articles capable of local manufacture would settle his Murray customs difficulties at a stroke. The tables would then be completely turned. He would no longer be obliged to stand cap in hand before the Com missioner of Trade and Customs, begging his pardon and beseeching his compassion. He would stand on vantage ground, and be mere in a position to confer than to solicit favours.

na a position to confer than to solicit favours.

A stiff scale of duties would go a long way towards neutralising the advantages which the Melbeurne market offers to the settlers in the Murrumbidgee district. Goods could be brought up the Murray in the steamboats, be landed on the north bank, pay duty to Mr. Weekes, and as occasion served the provided serves the frontiers or if expected. be pushed across the frontier; or if our roads are improved and our railroads extended they might be forwarded from Sydney and stored in the frontier towns till opportunity served for disposing of them. It would be the task of Victoria then to establish border Custom-houses and to line the river with a preventive service and a tolerably expensive service that would b and a tolerably expensive service that would be if effective, while very useless if ineffective. If smuggling pays well, and there are moderate facilities for it, it is pretty sure to be forthcoming. There are not a few in Australia who are practised hands at, and perhaps more who would easily be broken-in, and the ease with which easily be broken-in, and the ease with which the river could be crossed would form a capital inducement to contraband operations. Mr.
Weekes will soon regain his forty thousand pounds a-year if the Victorian Parliament will only go in strong for Protection.
Whether such a policy will triumph in that colony is more than we can venture to predict.
It is not sofe to accept that it is to a deviated.

It is not safe to assert that it is too obviously foolish to be possible, because there is nothing too foolish to be endorsed by universal suffrage when under the tutelage of ignorant and self-seeking demagogues. If the popular orators can only contrive sufficiently to associate the idea of Free-trade with squatters, and capitalists, and merchants, and the "enemies of the people" generally, and connect the notion of protection with high wages and successful strikes, the jealousy entertained towards the successful classes is probably sufficient to cast a strong vote in favour of any policy that promises revenge, no matter how suicidal it may be. It is the favourite practice of many demagogues to represent all success as due to the favouring in fluence of unfair class legislation, and all poverty as the result of the cramping influence of the same one-sided legislation. Only let the law be reversed—let labour be protected and capital fined, and then the rich would soon cease to be "bloated," and the working man would have short hours, long pay, and light work. Is it much to be wondered at, with the popular ignorance that prevails as to the the popular ignorance that prevails as to the working of economic laws, that many are deluded by such specious promises, and shout for protection as if it would really be equivalent to a Legislative grant of money to the wagegetting class, and nothing more than an equitable recognition of the rights of labour? Nothing but experience, probably, will suffice to disabuse the popular mind; and even experience in matters of political economy is so complicated that it is difficult to make the connection of cause and effect easily seen. History shews cause and effect easily seen. History shews that in times of great distress the popular ex-planation of the cause of the evil has been generally erroneous, and that the sort of relief generally erroneous, and that the sort of relief impatiently clamoured for would have been injurious rather than beneficial.

If ever there was a country where protection was absurd in the extreme, that country is surely Victoria. Wages there are high, which is a proof that labour is productive, and yields greater proportionate returns than in countries where a day's labour can purchase favor comgreater proportionate returns than in countries where a day's labour can purchase fewer commodities. To withdraw labour from productive pursuits, and force it into less productive ones, is to throw away the advantages possessed, while to make up for the loss thus incurred, the whole commanity of consumers has to submit to extra taxation. By no conceivable torturing of facts can it be made to appear that a country grows richer by pro-

the extent of one-quarter, the profit must be

We have in these colonies a certain amount of capital, and of labour, and large undeveloped resources in the soil. How shall we best and most quickly prosper? By developing these resources—agricultural, pastoral, and mineral, or by competing with the worse paid labour of Europe? Free-traders say the former, Protectionists say the latter. The first thing to be done with a virgin country is to exhume its resources. Spread the population over its surface, unlock its natural treasures. On the basis of rural occupation cities will arise, and various forms of manufacuring industry will be naturally developed Protection in a young country would tend to create an unnatural congestion of the population in the towns, and to call them in from more profitable rural pursuits. We have not more people than can be profitably employed upon people than can be proman, compared to the soil. The country districts are not too thickly settled. We have no redundant poputations applications is wanted. thickly settled. We have no redundant population for whom factory employment is wanted. It is a curious sample of the jamble of ideas that go to form the popular creed that the Ministry in Victoria, which professes to be forcing the occupation of the soil by freeholders, and anxious to distribute the people over the land, should be also propounding a policy to clear the articular second dising a policy to cheat the natural process of difing a policy to chest the natural process of dif-fusion, and to concentrate hands in factory work in towns. Both notions, however, are popular, and for that reason they are both adopted. And though the rival theories on which they are based neutralise each other, this is disrega and even if it were in demand, "public orinion" is seldom critical enough to detect the offence. To be popular is the great thing with cabinets; to be right, or to be sensible, is a quite subordinate consideration.

Charles Whittel, coal merchant, was fined 10s with costs for cutting letters on a tree in the Botanical Gardens.
William Lyons, scannan, was charged with having committed a violent assault upon Joseph Abbott, cook of the ship Cairngorm. The ship is lying at the Queen's Wharf. About half-past twelve o'clock on Sunday morning, Abbott was proceeding up the stage from the wharf to the vessel, when he was struck on the top of the head and knocked down senseless. He was told afterwards by one of the men that prisoner (who is boatswain of the Cairngorm) had thrown a belaying pin at him. Matthew Bloomfield, seeman, who was acting as watchman on Saturday night, deposed that a little after twelve o'clock, hearing a moise on the Quny, went to the wharf, and found three men tighting, one of them being a soman of the Cairngorm. Abbott was then going on board with him (Bloomied) when prisoner throw several other belaying pin, which struck Abbott and knocked him down on the stage. Witnesses was prisoner throw several other belaying pin, somer was found guilty, and lined £5, in default of payment to be imprisoned for one calcaday month. Hoomield was , also charged; with having assaulted William Hatherby, a seaman, who, during the friends above referred to, was struck on the left temple and know ked down senselon by something thrown from the deck of the Cairngorm; but prisoner could not be identified with the throwing of the pin in this instance, and he was discharged, as was also John Finchin, who was suspected of favying aided and absitted in the assault.

GUESTIONS.

In answer to questions by different aldernea respecting various matters, the MAYOR answered as follows:—Tenders would, in a few days, be called for constructing a sewer at the Haymarkos in accordance with a recent resolution of the Concil, but they could not be legally accepted till the £500 to be subscribed by the persons interested in the nauter had been received. The plans and specifications would be ready in a few days. No arrangement had been made with any bank for advancing the money for constructing the sower, though one bank had offered to advance the money on certain conditions. It would be for the conneil to make the necessary arrangements. No steps had been taken for collecting the sewerage rates beyond what preparations he had made in the office. He infended to collect the rates from all those liable by law to pay them. No communication had been received from the Hyde Park Committee respecting Hyde Park Corner since the last sitting of the Council.—The contractor for the work in Charlotte-place had commenced the work, and he (the Mayor) did not know why it was not being proceeded with. The hydrants were answering the purpose for which they were exceld—Having understood that the upper part of William-street was in a dangerous state, in consequence of some kerbstones being washed out, he would inquire into the matter, and instruct the proper officer to carry out such repairs as might be required.

The names of the prisoners who were examined at the Police camp, on Monday last, are Robert M'Bride, a servant of Mr. M'Gurren's, storekeeper; William Valentine, a German; and James Camifield.

Inspector Saunderson and sergeant James Connell gave evidence which went to show that M'Bride and Canalleld were active in the riot, and that each of them fired a tent. Valentine assisted in carrying a banner. They were committed to take their trial. Bail, presonally, in £109, with two surelies in £50 cach, was taken for their appearance.

The street chamber of the street and I myself, on one occasion, heard Minki, the chief at Port Resolution, threaten to take his life i he would not go away in the vessel which brought me thero. He refused to go, and hitherto his life has been spared, but I much fear that unless he has left before the tidings of the Erromangan massacre reaches Tana, he will also fall a victim. Here, however, the malady being so virulent as to threaten the extermination of the nadives, and their characters being so savagely ferocious, the greatest animosity existed towards the whites; and notwithstanding that Mr. Gorden went daily from morning to night amongst the people, administering medicine, and endeavouring to alleviate as tar as lay in his power their misery, he became the object of their extreme hatred. Nuivan, a chief, having been prostrated by the discase, when almost dying, sent for Mr. Gordon, who give him some medicine. Snivan died next day; the tribe said that the missionary had poisoned him, and it was resolved to kill all the whites. A plan was laid, and so ingeniously artful was the scheme that had it not been divulged by a friendly mative, about ten minutes before the ine appointed for its excention, we would almost certainly have all perished. Of course, when the party came to carry their intentions into effect we were prepared, and they would disappointed. To add to their feelings of enuity towards Hr. Gordon, there was yet another reason, and to illustrate this I copy the following entry in his diary. Speaking of this singular disease which is strange and alarange to all, he writes: "It was proceeded by nearly an universal opposition to the Gospel, and much nurder and idolary. I felt sure that God would visit them in judgment, and warned them most solemnly but a few days before they were attacked. The chiefs, who maintain that, to give up their idols is the cessation of their ratio, can hardly now persuade their people that this is not to limitate them is also any the proposition to the organ, and warned them ones solemnly but a few days befo well they succeeded in their devilish designs the event has shown.

Anidst the gloom and grief which the tidings of this dreadful event will occasion to the relatives and friends of these marrya, and indeed to all Christians who are interested in the cause of missions, it must be chearing to know that in all their troubles and anxieties Mr. Gordon and his wife stedfastly rested their trust on the Rock of Ages, and at all times they submissively bent to His will. The last words in Mr. Gordon's diary are:—"I Thanks be to God for the measure of faith granted to us in these trouble-come and perilous times." Bless the Lord, oh, my soull who redeemeth hy life from destruction." Unwearingly they laboured in the cause of Christ, and now they have been called upon to receive the erown of martydora, and to cally in His presence the fullness of roward.

We were highly delighted 'yesterday by a visit from Bishop Patterson, of New Zealand. All the Musslen boys afterwards proceeded on his voyago to the children's ideads.

The Bishop read, with much fervour and feeling, the beautiful service of the English Church over the tomb, and immediately afterwards proceeded on his veyage to the Northern islands.

His informed me that the John Williams might be expected here daily, and I shall put Mr. Gordon's property on loard of her.

I have written you a long letter, but I am afraid it is rather unconnected and diffuse, as I have been so often interrupted, and I have been much hurried when writing it, so please excuse faults.

With sentiments of the deepest respect.

Your very obedient servant,

Wide Bay, Lifu, June 17th, 1861.

Rev. and dear Sir.—I herewith send you a few letters, which I beg you will forward to their respective destinations. A vessel has just called here, direct from Ermanga, on her way to New Caledonia, and I hasten to send you a note by her. She has confirmed the painful intelligence brought here about a week ago by another vessel, viz., the murder of the Rev. Mr. Gordon and his devoted wife. Alas! they are failen by the hands of a cruel, superstitious people. Their work is done: they are now receiving their reward. Two more names are added to the long noble list of martyrs. The particulars of the case arothese. In consequence of the incases, which have been raging among these islands, and followed by a fearful mortality, the natives of Erromanga determined to kill all the white people on that island, looking upon them as the cause of the disease, not drawing any distinction between the trader who took the sickness and the missionary who was using every effort to mobule it. If. appears that Mr. Gordon was fully aware that the natives intended taking would change their purpose the property of the property of the control of the core accurity than upon the "Rock of ages," and that I who, by a word of his mouth, instantly turned the mighty, raging, restless as an into a perfect calm could as easily quell the turbulent passions of a savage people. But Gord's ways are not as our ways. He saw fit to take them home, and now the four martyrs of Erromang, (Williams, Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon) have received their crowns, and occupy their places near the throne of God, in the nightless had of "Bealsh."

It was one morning about three weeks ago, while Mr. Gordon was busily engaged creeting a printing office—the few natives who are nominal Christians being away to get grass to thatch the crod—that a party of heatthes went to him and asked him to go and see some natives who are nominal Christians being away to get grass to thatch the crod—that a party of heatthes, and offered them medicine; the

S. M. Farlann, S. M. Cullege, last evening, delivered a lecture in the ochsolonom of the Church of the Secred Hoart, and a numerous auditory altended. The subject dealt with was "Progress." Modern progress, said the reverend lectures, is continued exclusively to the material world: it apostles ignore, if they do not deny, the moral world: Is any sits principles, its objects. An exclusive devotion to their respective walks, with very few exceptions, characteries the great names familiar to the student of natural science. This to some extent may explain the almost total forgetifixeless of the moral world witnessed in scientific men. Leaders of thought, the half-educated and ignorant look up to them, and accept from them the truths of science with unwavering faith. Modern progress is partial. It is mishly confined to the body and its wants, and cannot claim the undivided homage of man without degrading his higher nature, and making him its elave. This exaggerated material progress, without moral roligious training, contains in ithe cloments of rain, and threatens the rights, the liberties, nay, the very existence of society. Man's triumphs over the obstacles of the material world are but evidences of the gignatic power of Nature, but he cannot succeed in opposition to her laws. The empire of matter is, to a certain extent, increased, but the liberty of man diminished in its influence. Without moral progress, which is the pride and glory of our age, will ultimately lead to the ruin of society. The victory of man over material forces is the evidence of his weakness; he is dependent upon forces which he himself must obey. Instance the steam-engine, flying from kingdom to kingdom. Seated upon that engine man is a thing, not a man. Science, however, is noble; it is good; it is from Heaven, the Father of Lights; it is the gift to Hischildren. But it is a power, and who wi

Lecture on Chemistry, —The first of a series of three lectures on chemistry, was delivered by Mr. J. G. Crouch, yesterday evening, in the Temperanea Hall. The attendance was attremely small. Mr. Greuch introduced his lecture by noticing the great changes which the discoveries in chemistry had effected, and remarking that the general inattention to that important science, particularly in the deducation of youth, was much to be regretted. Many common materials had for a long time been neglected as worthless, but by accident it had been discovered that the most delicate colours could be obtained from them, such, for instance, as manve colour from could tar. He proposed to devote his first lecture to "exygen—the lite-feeder." Oxygen was a simple substance; it could not be analysed, nor could it be got in a state of solidity; it was only found in the form of gas. Eight out of every nine pounds weight of water consisted of oxygen. Oxygen was necessary to life, and there were in the human body small vessels, called to corpuseles, the office of which was to separate the oxygen from the air and energy its could not be analysed.

in the form of gas. Bight out of every nine pounds weight of water consisted of oxygen. Oxygen was necessary to life, and there were in the human body small vessels, called corpuscles, the office of which was to separate the oxygen from the air, and convey it to the system. A diagram was here referred to in flustration of the action of the corpuscles. It was a common fallacy to suppose that blood was red; but out of a thousand parts of the blood only 127 were red. These little vessels, of which there were four hundred to the inch, took into the system 550 lbs. weight of oxygen yearly, ar two and a half pounds every twenty-four hours, and had to discharge out of the system 751 lbs. of carbonie acid gas. Having stated the proportion of the gases in the atmosphere Mr. Crouch proceeded to mention that but for the combination of nitrogen with the oxygen in the air tho iron of the kitchen grate would burn more brilliantly than the coal put into it. It might be asked how it was that, as we gave out carbonic acid gas, the condition of the atmosphere did not become altered: By a beautiful provision the vegetation going on around us seized the carbon from the atmosphere, and it thereupon became solidized for our lature use, and the oxygen was sont back again to the air or ovitaine and re-warm the system. Strange as it might seem, combustion was continually going on in our systems. There man the am internal fire, or whence came this warmth? It was the express object of these corpuscles to convey the oxygen so as to keep this cternal fire-the vital lamp-burning. The act of producing moisture on glass by means of breaking on it showed that there was combustion going on. Some familiar illustrations were then introduced to show the part taken by oxygen in combustion, and the necessity to health of having abundance of fresh air. Oxygen had a great affinity for metals. Litharge and red-lead were nothing more than oxygen combined with lead, in different proportions. Several well known substances were nontioned as being nothing m

ST JOHN'S SCHOOL; BISHOPTHORPE.

A MINETINO, called by advertisement, of the parishioners was held last night, to receive a statement of accounts of the echool fund, and to devise means for liquidating the debt on the school, and for the furtherance of church purposes. It is perhaps right to mention preliminary to the notice of proceedings, that the whole of the funds originally, and since, were intended for the creation and establishment of a school within the parish. On the completion, however, of the school building, it was, in addition to educational purposes, appropriated to Divine service, and a qualified minister was appointed. This was most certainly with the approbation of the subscribers, and has since been found very benedicial. The meeting was purely of a business character, and was a very brief one. The Rev. Mr. Druke occupied the chair, who, having concisely stated the object of the meeting, called upon Mr. Storey, the secretary of the meeting, to read the roport. The secretary of the meeting, to read the roport. The secretary of the not think it necessary to read the whole report, as it was a mere compilation of figures. The results, however, were as follows:—the amounts of receipts had been, up to the let-July, £2960 14s, 3d.; of expenditure, £2934 17s. 4h., leaving the society in debt in the sum of £324 3s. 1d. The report further stated that the calls on the society would probably increase this amount of indebtedness before the end of the year.

Mr. Polland moved the first resolution, as follows.

Mr. Polland moved the first resolution, as follows, the society in debt in the sum of £374 3s. 1d. The report further stated that the calls on the society would probably increase this amount of indebtedness before the end of the year.

Mr. Polland moved the first resolution, as follows, "That it is highly expedient the debt at present existing upon the school-house should be at once liquidated, and, in order to carry out so desirable an object, that a bazaur be held before the close of the current year." He said that they all know from the commencement of the object they had in view, he had been favourable; but now for the liquidation of this, he decemed it the most desirable plan they could adopt. The object of the subscription was to combine education with religion. The bazaur, it was thought, might be held early in October, when they would have the spring sun shining on them with every description of floral beauties in abundance. In addition to this, he believed a number of other little schemes were affont which would tend to make the bazaars successful. He therefore had pleasure in moving the resolution.

Mr. Stonex seconded the resolution, and entered into a detail of figures, in which was clearly skewn the amount of the fund expended for merely school purposes, for which the building was first designed, and that expended on religious services. He stated the number of the scholars to be about one hundred, and of Sunday-school children about sevently or eighty.

The Chainman in putting the motion said he had secured the ex-operation of thirty-five ladies for carrying out the bazaar, and also of ten becturers, who would doubtless be able at their meetings to add something to the fund. The resolution was then carried mantinously.

Mr. H. B. Ebsworth moved the second resolution; he kind and valuable co-operation of the ladies of the district be earnestly invited, and that the gentlemen present here amount of debt, as arising frox the embarrassed state of the times, which was evinced most remarkably in the falling off of the church subscriptions. In the first ye

British and Foreign Bible Society was held hast evening in St. Paul's schoolroom, Redfern, for the purpose of advocating the claims of the Parent Society, and forming a Branch for the suburbs of Redforn and Chippendale. There were about fifty or sixty persons in attendance, the majority consisting of Indies. The chair was occupied by the Rev. A. H. Stephen, B.A. Resolutions expressive of gratitude to God for the past successes of the society, and plegging those present to renewed efforts on its behalf, were moved, seconded, and carried unanimously; and addresses of an impressive nature were delivered by the Rev. Mr. Relynack, the Rev. W. Slatyer, the Rev. Mr. Relynack, the sourse of his speech, the Rev. Mr. Tucker (agent from the London Society), and other friends of the cause. In the course of his speech, the Rev. Mr. Tucker ontered at some length into the origin and history of the Bible Society, illustrating by means of statistics taken from the last annual report the immense power which it exercised in distributing the Holy Scriptures over the world—the sacred volume being now circulated in no less than 183 different languages, and the aggregate issues since the formation of the society mounting to 63,000,000 copies. The reverend gentleman further described the great success which, by the blessing of God, had attended the labours of the society within the last few years as regarded the spread of truth by means of the Gospel in France, Austria, Italy, Russia, and Turkey. In all of these countries the agents of the society mere firmly established, and the Bible was now being supplied to some sixty millions of people, to whom, but a short time back, it was wholly unknown. A motion for the formation of a ladies' committee was moved by Mr. Vaughan, seconded by Mr. Owen, and carried after some commendatory remarks from Mr. Macdonald. Arrangements having been made for a futu

The road between Goulburn and Yass is represented as being in a frightful state, and the journey is likely to occupy at least three days. Probably the force, which will await at Yass the arrival of the Colonel, will start thence on Friday, and reach Burrangoug on Sunday. Colonel Kempt will be conveyed through from Campbelltowa to Burrangong in one of Messra. Crane and Roberts' coaches.

THE APPRAN REWEIN THE TROOPERS AND BUSHMANGERS.—Writing from Carcoar on the 20th instant, our correspondent says:—From information just received, the troopers, though badly wounded, are considered out of danger. It appears that there was only the bushranger Gardner in the hut when the troopers entered. He had taken shelter in a dark room, and commenced firing at them, he having two six-barrelled revolvers with him. The troopers also fired, but not seeing their object, shot at random. Corporal Middleton was shot through the lower lip, which knocked out three of his front teeth, and passed through the root of his isongue. It is supposed that he swallowed the ball, as it could not be found. He was also shot through the root of his isongue. It is supposed that he swallowed the ball, as it could not be found. He was also shot through the wrist, besides having three more bullet wounds. Hosey was hit on the temple, but the ball glanced off without doing him much injury. Gardner was secured and handeuffed, when Middleton proceeded to Bega to get assistance for himself and Hosey, who was stringing the prisoner towards Bega, when he was rescued by Peisley and his two mates. It is supposed that floating the prisoner towards Bega, when he was rescued by Peisley and his two mates. It is supposed that Thomas Bassett, was driving a horse and dray along the Bathurst Road, when, by some accident, the dray got upset, and the guard-iron fell across his neck, which must either have been broken or else must have choked him, as when foun

TASMANIA.

We have intelligence from Tasmania to the 19th instant. The following items of news are from the Hobart Twin Mercury.—

This Champton Rack.—The idea of the Champion Race has developed into a grand conception. The week opening with the 2nd and closing with the 9th December, if the projects talked of are carried out, will be a Carnival week in Tasmania. We cannot loss so favourable an opportunity of making the colonies around us acquainted with our capabilities to minister to them; with the attractions we possess as a place of resort; with our climate, our scenery, our table delicacies, our hospitality, and all that we enjoy of a nature to render a temporary sojourn amidst new scenes pleasant and refreshing. It is proposed that the races shall cover the three days, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. The Champion Stakes and the other prizes to be offered, having been contended for and won, and the evenings of the race days devoted to the flicatre, the concert-room, the dinacrpatty, and the ball, and such other forms of entertainment as the resources of our society are capable of supplying, there will remain Friday and, Saturday to cater for. It is proposed that Friday shall be the day fixed for the great annual regatta, which has for many years been the most popular and the most successful of the open-air annuaements of Hobart Town, and that on this occasion it shall be made an Australian Champion Race Meeting for the boats of all the colonies. Sydney is famous, as well as this harbour, for its sailing and rowing matches, and some of the finest yacht models, as well as some of the most expert sailors and earsunen in the world, are accustomed to compete in various of the Australian waters. The regatus of Friday will be most, appropriately followed by an agricultural and horticultural chow on the morning of Saturday, which will enable our visitors to see and judge for the insertion of the Australian waters. The River.—The Murray is well at its full, if not thank and bank. It was on the 16th on the rise rather than on the decline, and now presents a really noble appearance. There is no comparison between the Murray as we see if here, and as we have seen if from the banks at Moanna and Echuca. Here the bend of the river takes a greater sweep than at the before named crossing-places; and it seems far more rapid in its course. The creeks are still very high, the first one on the Victorian side having ten or twelve feet of water in it at the place where the drays cross it. Heavy drays are obliged to unload to getover it at all, and come ever, of course, half-loaded, causing a waste of time to all parties, though we suppose, according to the rule of its being "an ill-vind that blaws nobod y any good," the puntuan gets the benefit of it.—Albs ry Bumer.

This company has been formed for the purpose of working the northerly continuation of the auriterous quarts voin, situated upon the western slope of Mount Charceal, and known on the Adelong as the Victoria Reef. Upon this vein the promoters of the enterprise have, by special application, secured twelve hundred feet of ground under lease from Government. Although the provisional directors have delayed placing this project before the public, to secure for their charcholders the benefit of the new Limited Liabilities Act, they have no reason to regret the step, since subsequent discoveries made in the chain adjoining their ground, places the prospects of the company beyond speculation, and enables them to assert that no mining company in either colony has been brought out under more favourable auspices, or with better promise of profitable results. In support of this statement they confidently place before their notice the following facts:

The Victoria Reef is already, by individual exertion, proved to exist as a permanent vein for more than 600 feet, the miners tinding, in all instances, that as they progress in deptl. the quartz maintain their value, and increase in quantity and richness.

From tae Victoria Reef, some of the richest quartz have been extracted that the crushing mills of the Adelong have reduced, Yelding even 12 ozs. to the ton, but the majority giving an average of from 4 to 5 ozs.

In the claim adjoining the southern boundary of the company's ground, the vein, at a depth of 170 feet, is 7 feet wide, between walls, increasing as the drive progresses towarts the company's ground (from which it is now distant only 90 feet), and yielding 3 to 34 ozs, per ton, very casily wrought, very little blasting being required.

Upon the company's ground there are two shats already sunk, one 60 and the other 70 feet (abandoned at the rush to Kandra), a both of which small veins have been extracted, yieldin made at intervals of less than three months, or to exceed 10s, per share, and that only should the company's operations require it.

As the directors are in a position to calculate the depth at which they may expect to atrike the reef, they are confident in predicting that in a very short time after the commencement of the Company's weeks, they will be raising quartz, and the cencern a paying ne, so that the residue of its capital will then only be required for that for which there will exist a proved certain return—the more scientific and extensive opening up of their ground, so as to extract the largest amount of quartz at the awest possible cost.

When 600 shares are allotted, a general meeting of the shareholders will be convened, fig the purpose of electing their own directory, establishing by-laws, &c., and the works of the company will commence.

Application for shares, by post or cherwise, must be addressed to the secretary of the Vicoria Pioneer Gold Mining Company, Adelong.

Prospectuses and forms of application can be had at the Company's agents, Messrs. J. G. WALIER and CO, Wynyard-square, Sydney, until the Slat Juty, where specimens of quartz from the adjoining claims and a plan of the ref will be seen.

tolioving letter has been addressed to Mr. Powell, irem William Boards, Esq. residing at Edmonton, Middlesex:

"Nightingale Hall, Edmonton, December 10.

"Dear Sir—I have recently suffered much from a most riolent cough, proceeding from a tickling in my chest, which no remedy, out of many I resorted to, could allay. My head was constantly nehing, and my whole frame entiroly shaken. Having seen the good effects of your Balssam of Anisced in soveral members of my funity, I purchased a small bottle, and, when going to bed at night, took a teaspoonful in two tablespoonfuls of water just warm. The effect was immediate: it arrested the tickling in my chest, I slept well, and myos perfectly restored in the morning, with the exception of debility, arising from fairgue by incessant coughing for some days previous. My cough entirely left me, and has nover returned. Having since heard of a lady in the neighbourhood who for a long time had laboured under a most distressing cough, and who had resorted to every remely within her knowledge, I sent the remainder of a bottle to her, and that long standing, obstinate, and (as sho thought) incurable cough, was perfectly cured. You are at perfect liberty to make what use you may please of this communication, as the contents are strictly true. I shall take every opportunity of recommending your inestimable medicine, feeling as I de fully assured of its efficacy.

CALVANIZED TINNED IRON TILES.—MoreWood and Rogers patent, On SALE.

Itooling Tiles, 3 feet x 2 feet. These form a very light, and at the same time strong, roof; the raffers may be 3 feet 6 inches apart, and the battens 2 feet 8 inches apart. They are very valuable for country use, as the tiles may be laid with facility by any ordinary workman. The weight of a roof covered with timed from tiles ranges from 90 lb. to 130 lb. per square of 100 feet, while a square of slates weights about half a ton: this lightness effects a great saving in the tumber and general fabric of a building, and makes a roof of this metal the most economical that can be erected. The tiles, if required, may be laid over old shingles, thus saving the experses and risk of stripping the roof.

Galvanized Iron Ridgecapping. This is well adapted for cither iron, slated, or slungled roofs, and is the cheapest and mast durable capping that can be used.

Eight Waterside Allotments at the commencement of the town, bounded on the east by the west side of Auckland-street, being selections at the Government Sale held under the proclamation of the 8th January, 1854.

W. BOWDEN has received instructions to sell by auction, at the Land Sales Rooms, 423, George-street, on THURSDAY, the 1st day of August, 423, George-street, on Thursdall, the last and Valugus;

In the estate of Messrs. Kirchner and Co., by order of John Morris, Esq., official assignce, Eight of the most valuable allotments in the rising and important town of Gladstone, at Port Curtis, being among the first selections of building sites at that place, and chosen as most suitable for wharves and bonded stores, on account of the deep water immediately in front of them, all extending to high watermark.

The lois for sale are Nos 1, 3, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, and 12 of section 1, and are unquestionably the very best sites for merchants' wharves and warehouses.

Lois 19, 23, and 24, of section 3, will be sold at the hame time. These are well situated for shops. Grant from the Crown.

Suburban Allouncats at Parramatta, extending from the Railway Line, near the Junction Station, to the Southern and Western boundaries of the old Race Course, on both sides of the creek of fresh water, including also those beautiful hills near the residence of Francis Oakes, Esq., which command views of all the town and the country for miles around.

Preliminary Notice.

W. BOWDEN has been favoured with instructions to announce for sale, on an early day, to be fixed as soon as the survey is completed, All that valuable freehold preperty near the railway station at Parramatta, bounded for a great distance by the railway line to Liverpool, commencing near the property known as Vaukhall Gardens, bounded on the North and East by the town allotments sold some time since by W. H. Kerr, Esq., being subdivisions of the old nuce course; on the West by the read leading to Kenyon's, Whitakor's, and numerous other orchards in that vicinity; on the South by other small farms.

It is the intention of the vendor to sell this land in convenient lots of a few acres, to suit the wants of business men who may wish to have a cottage and orchard, or garden, close to a railway station, and, at the same time, so mear to a town as to be within ten minutes walk of it.
Market gardeners, nurserymen, and florists will be able to select suitable spots for their particular business, as muck of the land is suitable for rearing trees and vines. It soless proximity to a large town and the railway station offers advantages of the highest importance to such as may pursue this mode of getting an independent and competent living.

who is positively leaving for Queensland) to sell by auction, at the Fernanagh Hotel, Kiama, on THURSDAY next, 25th July.

That splendid and well-known little property on which he now resides, containing 50 acres (more or loss) of really rich dairy or cultivation land, having two streams of pure and never-failing water running through the farm, all cleared and nearly all enclosed with good fencing.

On the premises is crected a comfortable house, containing nine convenient rooms, verandah, kitchen, dairy, pigstyes, stockyards, and other outbuildings, and a capital garden, well stocked with choice fruit trees.

To the small capitalist this is a rare chance, those depressed times, to secure a saug little home, which for beauty, fortility, position, and convenience, cannot be surpassed in the colony, and only about two unless from the town and harbour of Kiama, and is for positive unreserved sale, as the proprietor is leaving for Queensland.

Remember, no reserve.

Terms exceedingly liberal; and full particulars on application to Mr. WILLIAM HEGLETT, commission agent, Sussex-street, Sydney; or the auctioneer, at Kiama.

S1. YOULAR DOMECLES.—Like other familiar birds, the spi. Frow sometimes builds its nest in very unsuspected, 'ocalities, and there are several examples of their nests being placed in different parts of a ship's rigging. Pe, rexample, while the Great Britain was rigging. Pe, rexample, while the Great Britain was rigging. Pe, rexample, while the Great Britain was built two nests. 'in the "bunts" of the main and mixen built two nests. 'in the "bunts" of the sail is gathered up into a bundle near the mast. As the sail could not be set without distn. 'bing the birds, the sailors augured a speedy and ph. 'sparrow building upon the furled sail of the Aurors, of Belfast; but as the sail was loosened during the 'econd voyage to Glasgow, the nest was destroyed and the eggs broken. Again, a pair of sparrows built their nests under the slings of the foreyard of the ship A. 'Mo, of Shields, just before leaving port, and, when 't brought back materials wherewith to complete th. THE VICTORIAN EXPLORING EXPEDITION.

THE VICTORIANY REVIOLATION SHOWS AND ADDRESS AND ADDRE

Useries Boors.—Immense numbers of books are published, serving neither for use, ornament, nor recreation, as they neither instruct nor please. Such books are like nauseous physic, which we swallow against our will, and yet receive no benefit from it. The most astonishing part is, that learned men should publish comments upon things before they know whether the things exist—as basilisks, dregons, the phænix, witches, conjurors, apparitions, &c. Some men excruciate themselves about such points of chronology as are dark and unsearchable. Others dispute about the actions of a person, whilst it is not known there ever was such a person in the world. Many plunge into metaphysics, or endeavour to explain the nature and properties of spirits and incorporeal substances, which nobody has any idea of. And with this refined rubbish all libraries are loaded. Such works are like cobwebs, and their authors like spiders, who spin themselves to skeletons, and leave their enamaring productions behind them.

For the first time during the last two years or more the aggregate railway traffic returns for the United Kingdom shows a falling off. For the week ending May 4th, the decrease was £3310 as compared with corresponding week last year.
